ABSTRACT

The tables in this document are formatted to provide geographic origin information on numbers of graduate and undergraduate students both full- and part-time. Tables for each college are provided that show the numbers of students at the college from each New York State county, other state, or foreign country. In another part of the report, this same permanent residence information is arrayed by county, state, and country. Summary tables and percentage trends are included. Definitions of terms used in this report are provided in the glossary at the end of the book. Some findings are: (1) More (43.9 percent) students at University Centers have permanent residencies in the county of the institution's location than students at the University Colleges (29.2 percent). (2) Among all senior institutions, the Health Sciences Centers have the highest percentage (55.1 percent) of students coming from their local area, while the Specialized (24.0 percent) and Statutory Colleges (11.3 percent) have the lowest percentages of this type of student. (3) There are 30.8 percent of the students at the Agricultural and Technical Colleges who come from the local area. (5) There are 19.0 percent of the students attending Statutory Colleges who resided in some other state. (6) Foreign student enrollment ranges from a high of 6.0 at the Statutory Colleges to a low of 0.4 percent at the Agricultural and Technical Colleges. (7) There are 62 percent of the students from other states who come from the contiguous states of New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Connecticut, and Massachusetts. (Author/KE)

PREFACE

This report presents the results of the annual survey of the geographic origins or permanent residences of all credit course students attending institutions of the State University of New York during the Fall 1973 term. Beginning in 1968, the Central Staff Office of Institutional Research has conducted this extensive survey each year and published the results in two volumes, one dealing with all credit course students and the other confined to first-time students.

Most surveys of the residences of college youth suffer the problem of a valid definition of "residence". In this study, the respondents were asked to report "permanent" residence as distinct from "local" or "temporary" residence. As students grow older, marry, and participate in the community while attending a higher education institution, there is an increasing tendency for an institution's records to begin to reflect the "local" residence in decisions regarding housing, tuition rates and the like. For example, the concept of "origin" for a student working on his third degree at as many colleges is not simply determined. It may be that the assumption of a single origin is a methodological flaw of all such surveys. However, the direction of bias caused by this problem can probably be stated as follows: somewhat more students have origins outside an institution's commuting distance than the data reflect.

The tables of this report are formatted to provide geographic origin information on numbers of graduate and undergraduate students both full and part-time. Tables for each college are provided which show the numbers of students at that college from each New York State County, other state, or foreign country. In another part of the report, this same permanent residence information is arrayed by county, state and country so that the reader can find out how many students from each county attended which State University institution. In addition, summary tables and percentage trends tables are included which are discussed in the summary on the following pages. Definitions of terms used in this report are provided in the glossary at the end of the book.

No study of this magnitude could have been conducted or completed without the extensive cooperation of campus personnel and of those in the Central Staff Office of Institutional Research. Those who will use this document will be grateful for that effort. We would give serious consideration to any recommendations for future studies or reports of this type.

SUMMARY

The data contained in this report is restricted to information on the geographic origins of students. The reasons behind the distributions shown by the tables are complex and often unique to a particular institution and area.

One of the questions that information on geographic origins seeks to answer is how many of the students at a particular college have their permanent residence in the local area of that college. For purposes of this report, the local area or the area of the institution's location is the county in which it is located - except for the community colleges, where the location is the sponsorship area.

More students at University Centers (43.9%) have permanent residences in the county of the institution's location than students at the University Colleges (29.2%). The comparison remains in the case of full-time enrollment, but the percentages drop to 34.0% at the University Centers and 21.6% at the University Colleges.

Among all senior institutions, the Health Sciences Centers have the highest percentage (55.1%) of students coming from their local area. In contrast, the Specialized and Statutory Colleges have the lowest percentages of this type of student, 24.0% and 11.3%, respectively.

At the two year colleges, the percent of students from the area of the institution's location varies considerably. At the Agricultural and Technical Colleges, 30.8% of the students come from the local area; in the case of the Community Colleges the figure is 85.6%. The high figure in the case of the Community Colleges reflects, in part, the difference in the definition of "location" indicated above; and, more importantly, the special mandate of the Community Colleges to serve their local area.

Another major use of information on permanent residence is to determine the extent to which students from outside of the state, both nationwide and foreign, are being served by the State University. In general, these percentages are quite low with the possible exception of 19.0% of the students attending Statutory Colleges who reside in some other state. Foreign student enrollment ranges from a high of 6.0% at the Statutory Colleges to a low of 0.4% at the Agricultural and Technical Colleges.

In the case of out-of-state students who are permanent residents of the United States, 62% come from the contiguous states of New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Connecticut and Massachusetts; the greatest number of these coming from New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

The last section of this report provides information on percentage trends in permanent residences of full-time students from 1959 through 1973.
